

DM Closer — Week 1 Reel Scripts (v2: Course Creators)

Repositioned for course & digital-product creators, closing as the wedge.

Same machine as Caroline's: broad/curiosity hook for reach → niche offer in the caption → comment CLOSER → DM funnel. Voice: calm, direct, serve-don't-sell.

No income or earnings claims. Spread across the 5 content pillars.

Day 1 — The Close (authority) · Pillar: The Close

- Hook (say first): "Everyone teaches you to launch. Nobody teaches you to close. That's why your launch flopped."
- On-screen text: Build → Launch → 🤝 Close
- Format: talking head
- Script: "You did the work — built the course, ran the launch, got the DMs. Then someone says 'how much?' and you fumble it. The launch doesn't pay you. The close does. I came up at the hardest door in sales, and the same moves close a course in the DMs. Start here: never answer 'how much' with just a number."
- Caption: You can build it and launch it — can you close it? Comment CLOSER and I'll send you my DM closing system. 🤝 Save this · Follow.
- Why: contrarian hook names the exact gap your audience feels; your origin = instant authority.

Day 2 — Reach hack (broad) · Pillar: Traffic/Hooks

- Hook: "Phone trick for anyone selling a course in the DMs — wish I knew it sooner."
 - On-screen text: Reply 3× faster 📢
 - Format: screen-recording demo
 - Script: Show iPhone Text Replacement (Settings → General → Keyboard → Text Replacement). Save your best opener, price reply, and objection responses as shortcuts — type ;price → full message. "Stop retyping your best lines."
 - Caption: Speed in the DMs = more closes during a launch. Comment CLOSER for the actual words I use to close. Save this 📌
 - Why: broadly useful hack = max reach (her top reels were phone hacks); still on-niche; funnels.

Day 3 — The objection line · Pillar: The Close

- Hook: "'Let me think about it' on your launch is never about thinking. Here's the line that flips it."
 - On-screen text: The think-about-it close
 - Format: talking head
 - Script: "When a launch lead says 'let me think about it,' don't push — lower your tone. 'Totally fair. Usually when someone says that, there's one specific thing they're unsure about. What is it for you?' Now you're handling the real objection, not the polite no."
 - Caption: The objection they say is rarely the real one. Comment CLOSER for my objection playbook. Save for your next launch.
 - Why: one sharp, usable mechanic; curiosity + contrarian.

Day 4 — Listicle · Pillar: Launch

- Hook: "3 reasons your course launch didn't sell — and it's not the price."
- On-screen text: 1 · 2 · 3 📢
- Format: listicle talking head
- Script: "One — your offer wasn't clear; confusion never buys. Two — no real reason to act now; 'someday' never converts. Three — you marketed hard but never closed the DMs. You got the 'interested' and let it sit. Reach gets attention. The close gets paid."
- Caption: Most failed launches die in the DMs, not the price. Comment CLOSER for the close-it-out scripts. 📌 Save.
- Why: numbered/listicle = save-worthy (her "4 strategies / 6 hacks" format).

Day 5 — Push-pull · Pillar: The Close

- Hook: "Stop chasing launch leads in the DMs. Watch what happens when you pull back."
 - On-screen text: Push → pull
 - Format: talking head
 - Script: "Give value, then take a little away. 'Honestly, not sure my program's even a fit for you yet — can I ask what you're working on?' That bit of uncertainty makes them sell YOU on why it fits. Chasing repels. Calm closes."
 - Caption: Desperation repels, calm closes. Comment CLOSER for the push-pull DMs I use. Follow for more.
 - Why: pattern-interrupt hook; teaches your signature mechanic.

Day 6 — The assume-close · Pillar: The Close

- Hook: "Never end a launch DM with 'let me know.' Do this instead."
 - On-screen text: Two yeses, never a yes/no
 - Format: talking head
 - Script: "'Let me know' hands the decision back and the deal goes cold. Once they've leaned in, assume it: 'I've got two spots opening this week — want me to get you set up Tuesday or Thursday?' Two yeses, never a yes-or-no. You're not selling, you're scheduling."
 - Caption: 'Let me know' is where launches die. Comment CLOSER for the exact close-out messages. Save this 📌
 - Why: bold contrarian command hook; instantly usable line.

Day 7 — Origin story (broad relatability) · Pillar: Story/Authority

- Hook: "I launched a digital product with 600 followers. Here's the part nobody posts — the selling."
 - On-screen text: The part nobody shows
 - Format: talking head
 - Script: "Everyone shows the launch graphics and the 'doors are open' posts. Nobody shows the DMs — the 'how much,' the 'let me think,' the ghosting. That's where it's won or lost. I close those the same way I closed strangers at the door: agree, redirect, stay calm, never chase."
 - Caption: The launch is the easy part. The DMs are where it's won. Comment CLOSER for how I close them. Save · Follow.
 - Why: small-account relatability + curiosity = shares; ties origin to the niche.

Filming notes

- Hook in the first 1–2 seconds — said out loud AND on-screen. Hook is broad/curious; the offer stays in the caption.
- ~20–40 seconds. One idea per reel.
- Every caption ends with Comment CLOSER + "Save" + "Follow."
- Alternate reach + authority: broad hack/story (Days 2, 7) with teaching (Days 1, 3, 4, 5, 6).
- Set up the CLOSER keyword auto-DM first so it instantly sends your closing system — that's the whole funnel.
