

DM Closer — Ready-to-Post Reels: Digital Marketing & Launch

The companion set to the closing reels — these cover the Offer, Launch, Traffic/Hooks, and Story pillars so your feed teaches real digital-marketing value, not only closing. Closing stays the wedge (every reel ties back to it + ends with CLOSER), but the value here is marketing & launching digital products. Voice: calm, low, direct, from the hip. Serve, don't chase. No income or earnings claims — teach the move, show the process, never the money. Audience: course & digital-product creators.

On-screen text = what to put on screen (one line per beat, ~1.5–2s).

Sound = a small trending audio (under ~10K uses). Reels 1–4 need no filming.

Reel 1 — OFFER · Validate before you build (value list · no filming)

On-screen text:

- How to know your digital product will sell — before you build it 📌
- People already DM you asking how you did this.
- They've tried to solve it themselves and failed.
- They've paid for a worse version before.
- You can name the exact result in one sentence.
- 3 of these true? Build it.
- Then go sell it in the DMs — the part most people skip.

Caption: Most failed products aren't bad — they're built for nobody. Validate first: real demand, a clear result, people already asking. Then the only thing left is the conversation that closes it. Comment CLOSER for how I run that conversation. Save · Follow.

Why: Offer-pillar value (validation) + the closing wedge in the last line; round-number value list = save-worthy.

Reel 2 — LAUNCH · The 5 days before you open cart (listicle · no filming)

On-screen text:

- What to post the 5 days before you launch 📌
- Day 1 — The problem. Name it sharper than they can.
- Day 2 — The proof. Show the process working (no hype).
- Day 3 — The objection. Handle the big one out loud.
- Day 4 — The offer. Say exactly what it is.
- Day 5 — Open. Two-option CTA, never "let me know."
- Then close the DMs it brings in.

Caption: A launch isn't a day — it's a runway. Five days of content that warms people up, handles the doubt, and makes the open obvious. Then it comes down to the DMs. Comment CLOSER for the close-it-out scripts. Save this for your next launch.

Why: Launch-pillar framework; ends on the close; "Day 1–5" structure is screenshot-worthy.

Reel 3 — TRAFFIC/HOOKS · 10 hooks that get saved (swipe file · no filming)

On-screen text:

- 10 reel hooks for digital product creators (steal these) 📌
- "Here's how I [result] in 5 simple steps"
- "This might be controversial, but [belief]"
- "Top 5 tools for [outcome]"
- "The thing nobody tells you before you launch"
- "Stop [common mistake]. Do this instead."
- "3 mistakes costing you sales on your [product]"
- "What I'd do if I started from 0 followers"
- "If you're nervous to launch, try this"
- "Steal my [process]"
- "The 10-minute [task] that changed my [result]"

Caption: Your hook decides whether anyone sees the rest. These are the templates I'd build a week of content on — specific, curious, a clear result. Save them. Comment CLOSER for the DM system that turns the views into sales. Follow for more.

Why: This is her exact 25K-comment format (a hook swipe file), adapted to your audience — pure comment magnet.

Reel 4 — TRAFFIC/HOOKS · Why your reels flop in 3 seconds (one idea · text or talking head)

Hook / line 1: "Your reel isn't bad. Your first 3 seconds are."

Body (beats or spoken):

- No movement → they scroll. Add motion in the first frame.
- No text hook → they don't know why to stay. Put the promise on screen.
- Vague hook → no curiosity. Be specific and name the result.
- Fix the open. The rest of the reel finally gets a chance.

Caption: Most reels don't fail in the middle — they die in the first 3 seconds. Movement, a text hook, a specific promise. Get those right and the algorithm gives the rest a shot. Comment CLOSER for the system that closes the people who do stick around. Save · Follow.

Why: Traffic-pillar tip, meta and broadly useful (high reach); wedge in the last line.

Reel 5 — STORY/AUTHORITY · Followers don't buy (one idea · talking head or text)

Hook / line 1: "Your follower count isn't why people don't buy."

Body:

- People don't buy because you have 50K followers.
- They buy because you named their problem better than they could.
- And because you made the next step feel safe.
- You can do both with 600 followers. I did.
- Reach gets attention. Trust + a calm close gets the sale.

Caption: I had 600 followers for a long time. The accounts that sell aren't the biggest — they're the clearest and the calmest in the DMs. Build trust, then close without chasing. Comment CLOSER for how I do the second part. Save · Follow.

Why: Story/authority + reframes the "I'm too small" objection; ends on the wedge.

Reel 6 — LAUNCH/NURTURE · Stop launching to strangers (one idea · text or talking head)

Hook / line 1: "Stop launching to strangers. It's why your cart stays quiet."

Body:

- Cold audience + launch day = crickets.
- Warm them first: 1 week of content on the exact problem.
- Slide into the DMs before you sell — start the conversation.
- By open day, you're closing friends, not pitching strangers.

Caption: Most "failed launches" launched to people who weren't ready. Warm them with content, start real conversations in the DMs, then open. The sale is just the calm continuation of a chat you already started. Comment CLOSER for the DM side of this. Save this.

Why: Launch/nurture value that leads straight into the DM close — your wedge, end to end.

How the two sets work together (a full week)

Alternate marketing value with closing value, leading with the no-film reels:

Day	Reel	Pillar
Mon	Marketing #3 (10 hooks swipe file)	Traffic/Hooks
Tue	Closing #1 (7 DM lines)	The Close
Wed	Marketing #2 (5-day launch runway)	Launch
Thu	Closing #4 (10 DM openers)	The Close
Fri	Marketing #1 (validate your offer)	Offer
Sat	Closing #2 (door → DM origin)	Story
Sun	Marketing #4 (3-second hook fix)	Traffic/Hooks

Every caption ends: Comment CLOSER · Save · Follow — and the CLOSER auto-DM sends your system.
